"THAW DID NOT KNOW HIS ACT WAS WRONG."

ALIENIST TESTIFIES IN CASE

GIVES OPINION AS TO DEFENDANT'S MENTAL CONDITION.

A DAY OF LEGAL SPARRING

Jerome and Delmas Clash at Frequent Intervals—District Attorney Blocks Completion of Mrs. Thaw's Testimony—Another Expert to Take Stand Today.

NEW YORK, Feb. 11.—Answering a hypothetical question, covering every detail of the testimony up to this time in the Thaw trial, including Mrs. Evelyn Nesbit Thaw's narration of her life history, Dr. Charles C. Wagner, superintendent of the state hospital for the insane at Binghamton, N. Y., declared on the witness stand today that, in his opinion, Harry K. Thaw did not know that his act was wrong when he shot and killed Stanford White.

Dr. Wagner stepped aside for later cross-examination by District Attorney Jerome, and as court adjourned for the day, it was announced that the defense would offer testimony from other alienists tomorrow.

Dr. Wagner's opinion of a hypothetical question, the data under consideration being the author of the letters which have been introduced as emanating from Harry Thaw during his estrangement from Evelyn Nesbit after their return from Europe in 1903, followed a day of legal sparring between Delphin M. Delmas for the defense, and Mr. Jerome for the prosecution.

Mrs. Thaw's Testimony Interrupted.

Mr. Jerome effectually blocked the completion, for the time being, of the testimony of Mrs. Evelyn Thaw by insisting that before she should go further, competent testimony as to Thaw's unsoundness of mind should be given. Mr. Delmas tried to carry forward the young wife's story, but the district attorney was on his feet with an objection to every question.

Mrs. Thaw had been recalled as the chief witness of the day. One of her predecessors was J. D. Lyon, vice president of the Union bank of Pittsburg, who stated that he had received Harry Thaw's will from the latter's own hands some time prior to April 1, 1906, and had held it in a safe deposit box until late in November last, when he directed his secretary to forward it to John B. Gleason, of Thaw's counsel. Mr. Gleason then swore that he had received the will by mail December 11, 1906, and that no alterations or changes had been made in the instrument while in his possession.

Mr. Jerome admitted the probate of the will from Mr. Lyon to Mr. Gleason without the necessity of calling the former's secretary. Mr. Delmas did not offer the will in evidence, however, owing to the fact that it has not in its entirety been proved as having been legally executed by Thaw.

Note Is Produced.

When young Mrs. Thaw was called to the stand she was dressed precisely as when she occupied the witness chair last week. As she was taking her seat Mr. Delmas turned to the district attorney and renewed his demand of Wednesday that the note which was passed by Mrs. Thaw to her husband at the Cafe Martin the night of the tragedy, should be produced. Mr. Jerome at the former demand had remained silent. Today he at once said he would send for the slip of paper. It was brought from his office, identified by Mrs. Thaw and read by Mr. Delmas as follows:

"The b—— is here."

Mrs. Thaw testified today that "the b——" meant the blackguard, as Thaw always referred to Stanford White. The other essential point Mrs. Thaw was allowed to bring out was the statement that the defendant never carried a pistol except in New York. She was asked many other questions, embodying various stories she had discussed with Thaw, including the alleged fate of a girl known to them as "the pie girl," at the hands of Stanford White, but Mr. Jerome blocked every question with sustained objections.

Expert Testimony Blocked.

After compelling the defense to begin rapid testimony as to Thaw's insanity by his objections, Mr. Jerome next proceeded to block the testimony of Dr. Wagner as to the results of his six visits to the defendant in the Tombs and his tests as to the latter's mental condition.

Dr. Wagner was not allowed to go into the conversations he had had with the defendant, nor the conclusions he had reached from these conversations. He was confined to what he actually observed and he declared his observations were so closely interlaced with his questioning of the defendant that he did not know whether he could separate them.

A long argument over the point resulted in Mr. Delmas withdrawing any further questions as to the tests, confining himself with asking Dr. Wagner to give his opinion of the hypothetical question.

BREAK IN COLORADO CLOSED

Southern Pacific Has Hard Struggle With Contrary Stream.

IMPERIAL, Cal., Feb. 11.—The water coming through the break in the Colorado river was shut off this morning after a long and hard struggle by the Southern Pacific railroad company. The levees have been put in good condition several days before the break and are being extended rapidly with the aid of hundreds of men and teams. The New and the Alamo rivers, carrying water from the Colorado to the Salton sea, are rapidly going dry in the valley. It is expected that the Salton sea will now fall rapidly and will fully evaporate through evaporation in about ten years. The floods have caused but little actual damage to the cultivated lands of the valley.

INSURANCE INVESTIGATION.

Will Be Deferred by Jerome Until After Thaw Trial.

NEW YORK, Feb. 11.—District Attorney Jerome said today he would not take up the insurance investigation until after the Thaw case had been disposed of.

E. P. Whitney had a talk with the district attorney with regard to the status of an indictment pending against Charles S. Fairchild, secretary of the treasury in the Cleveland administration, who was indicted with George W. Perkins recently. Mr. Fairchild was abroad when the indictments were returned, but returned today.

Mr. Whitney asked if the district attorney wished Mr. Fairchild to give bail, but the latter said that unless Mr. Fairchild wished to do so he need not put in bail at present.

STILL NO AGREEMENT

THIRD CONFERENCE TO BE HELD ON JAP QUESTION.

California Delegation Expresses Ignorance of Nature of Basis of Settlement.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11.—As a result of an hour's conference at the White house this afternoon at which President Roosevelt, Secretary Root, Mayor Schmitz of San Francisco and the members of the school board of that city participated, Mayor Schmitz late tonight made a statement summarizing the situation.

When asked whether the proposition submitted by the San Francisco delegation called for the exclusion of Japanese coolie labor from this country, Mayor Schmitz replied:

"We are not making a treaty, and have not discussed with the president the question of excluding the Japanese from this country by treaty. Saturday we heard the president's views, and today we presented our side of the question. It now remains for us to modify our views in order to reach an agreement with the president, or for Mr. Roosevelt to modify his views to reach an agreement with us. The conference adjourned subject to the call of the president, and I do not believe that we will be called to the White house until Thursday or Friday.

"It has been agreed that the whole matter will be considered tomorrow." Mayor Schmitz declined to say whether the question of excluding the Japanese coolies by legislation formed a part of their proposition which was submitted today. Mayor Schmitz and other members of the San Francisco delegation have received hundreds of telegrams urging them to advocate a treaty excluding Japanese laborers and legislation by congress to carry the provisions of this treaty into effect.

It can be stated on good authority that the president has appealed to Mayor Schmitz and his associates to bring the anti-Japanese agitation to an end by rescinding the order for oriental schools. Under the California law, the question of separate schools is left to the discretion of the school authorities, and before the earthquake disaster the Japanese were admitted to the white schools. Mayor Schmitz declares that the only reason for establishing the separate institutions was because the Japanese were crowding the white children out in certain districts. When asked as to the general tone of the telegrams received from San Francisco, Mayor Schmitz said:

"The people of California do not give a rap about the school question, but they are opposed to the admission of Japanese coolies into this country."

Members of the California delegation tonight expressed ignorance of the nature of the basis of settlement. The widespread newspaper comment was deprecated at the conference, and the participants pledged themselves to refrain from statements until some conclusions have been reached. The San Francisco delegation has agreed that all statements for publication must come from Mayor Schmitz, while Representative Hayes is acting as spokesman for the congressional delegation.

As the Californians were leaving the White house this afternoon the mayor was asked if a copy of a Japanese treaty on exclusion of laborers from that country had been exhibited, but Mr. Schmitz replied that he had not seen anything of that sort.

Secretary Loeb announced that there was no statement from the White house.

Secretary Root remained after the delegation left and toward nightfall took a long walk with the president.

EARTHQUAKE IN VIRGINIA

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va., Feb. 11.—An earthquake of considerable violence was felt throughout this section at 5:22 o'clock this morning. In Charlottesville dishes were rattled at the breakfast tables. The shock was recorded at the University of Virginia at the Leander observatory as lasting about 30 seconds.

WEALTH IN TREES

ENOS A. MILLS SHOWS VALUE OF OUR FORESTS.

PREVENT DAMAGE BY FLOODS

INCREASE WATER IN HILLS FOR IRRIGATION.

SAVE EVAPORATION BY WIND

Government Now Has 127,000,000 Acres of Forest Reserves Which Will Be a Great National Asset for Future Generations.

"The forests of America must be restored and preserved if the nation is to maintain its civilization," said Enos A. Mills to an audience which crowded Perkins hall last night to hear the famous Colorado tree expert speak on "Forestry" under the auspices of the Pike's Peak Polytechnic society of this city. Mr. Mills has recently been appointed chief lecturer of forestry for the United States and his lecture last night demonstrated his ability in this line, as he held his audience spellbound and literally made the trees talk for themselves. The lecture was illustrated by a great number of stereopticon views which aided the listeners to an understanding of the points made by the speaker.

W. C. Sturgis, dean of the school of forestry of Colorado college, introduced the speaker, referring to him as a man whom the government had prepared for an office and had then prepared the office for the man. The lecture, he said, was specially appropriate at this time as it would greatly aid the efforts of those interested in the progress of the school of forestry. Not being able to assign any special locality for Mr. Mills, he introduced him as "the man from the Rocky Mountains," and the speaker at once launched into his topic.

Relates Experiences.

For more than an hour Mr. Mills held his audience enrapt with the brilliant array of facts about nature intermingled with "side-splitting" stories of the comical experiences which he has encountered in the primitive districts of the Rocky mountains. As he progressed it seemed to the hearers that nature herself was telling her secrets in her own way, and the speaker was simply her interpreter. Fifteen years ago Mr. Mills started out into the mountains to study trees and for the most of the time since he has rambled over the hills, both summer and winter, until he knows the state and its natural features as a farmer does his garden. During all his rambles he has slept on the ground and lived on what nature provided so that it is little wonder that he understands the speech of the trees and flowers as other people do the speech of human kind.

Practical Benefits of Forests.

After congratulating this city on having a school of forestry and predicting that within the next ten years the demand for expert foresters will be increased 1,000-fold, Mr. Mills launched into the practical benefits to be derived from preservation of the forests. Outside of the tremendous commercial value of lumber and wood which applies equally to all parts of America, there is the value of trees as a protection from winds and floods. Since the falling away of the primeval forests, wind storms have frequently wrought damage to the extent of millions of dollars and floods have swept away thousands of homes and inundated cities and huge farming areas, destroying the crops and drowning the stock. In this state alone he cited the damage done by three floods, the Poudre river flood, one at Trinidad and the Sand Creek flood which, destroyed millions of dollars worth of property and scores of lives. These were caused, he said, by the absence of trees which tend to retain the water at the heads of the main watersheds until it sinks into the soil. The same applies to the valley of the Mississippi, which, the speaker claimed, will never be free from floods until the country tributary to the head waters is reforested.

Of Incalculable Value.

Over and above the matter of beauty which the trees lend to nature and which is especially essential in this state, there are many other considerations in favor of trees. They can be made one of the best commercial assets as a crop the same as wheat; they are sanitary and health-giving, for they inhale poisonous gases and exude oxygen and acids for the purifying of water; they assist the irrigation farmer by checking hot, dry winds and retaining the moisture of the hills; they protect the snow and hold it for the use of the irrigationist, and they afford shade and shelter to the thousands of little birds that are useful in pebrecting the crops from destruction by insects.

Enormous Profits in Forests.

Mr. Mills explained the object of the forest reserves as being simply an investment for the future. The government has now about 127,000,000 acres of forest reserves and the idea is not only to preserve the present trees but to add to them by annual planting and replace burnt areas by new crops. The profit in a material way from this policy may be imagined from the fact that Prussia, with its 6,300,000 acres of forest reserve, receives annually $25,000,000 revenue therefrom. The planter of trees is working for the future benefit of the nation and the results will be reaped, after all the gold and coal mines of the country have been exhausted.

The magnificent views which Mr. Mills used to illustrate his lecture served to bring out vividly many of features of the questions which, as from the forester in this state, he showed the direction of work in the demonstration of the forest reserves as snowslides, fires and landslides. In [illegible] increase [illegible] miles of forest in this state have been destroyed by fire alone. Mr. Mills strongly recommended that every effort be used to induce the legislature to passing bill now before the house providing for a forestry commission and the employment of a state forester.

TO SPEND $1,000,000

GUANAJUATO CO. WILL BUILD ANOTHER POWER PLANT.

Special Meeting Called to Increase Capitalization—Colorado Springs Men Principal Owners.

A second power plant, to cost upwards of $1,000,000, will be constructed at once by the Guanajuato Power and Electric company of this city, in the state of Michoacan, Mexico. Work will begin next month, according to present plans.

The company is already operating a plant on the Duruo river, which was recently completed at a cost of about $1,500,000. The second plant, which will cost nearly as much, will be finished within a year after the commencement of operations, and the company will, at its distant future date, erect a third power plant to complete its chain of power generation and transmission in that country. The total capacity of the three plants will be 17,000 horsepower. A special stockholders' meeting of the company has been called to increase the capitalization and bond issue.

The officers of the Guanajuato Power and Electric company are: Henry Hine, president; L. E. Curtis, vice president and treasurer, and Irving W. Bothright, secretary, all of Colorado Springs. These comprise the directorate, together with C. A. Coffin, New York, president of the General Electric company; John Hays Hammond, New York; J. S. Hartlett, Boston, and Judge H. C. Lunt, Colorado Springs.

A special stockholders meeting has been called for March 6, in the local offices of the company, in the Giddings block, to increase the capitalization of the Guanajuato company and to guarantee the issuance of a bond issue of $500,000 by the Michoacan Power company. The latter organization, an interest of the Guanajuato, was incorporated to take over power plants and transmission lines in Mexico. The Guanajuato company is capitalized for $3,000,000, divided into $1,500,000 common and the same amount of preferred stock. Its bond issue is $500,000. It is proposed at the special stockholders meeting next month to increase the common stock of the Guanajuato company from $1,500,000 to $2,000,000. The preferred stock will remain as it is. The company will also guarantee an increase of $500,000 in the bond issue of its subsidiary organization, the Michoacan Power company, which has a present issue of $1,000,000. It is capitalized for $1,000,000.

Work on the second plant of the company will start immediately after the formal ratification of the increase in capitalization by the stockholders next month, according to Vice President Curtis. The increased business of the company necessitates the construction of another plant. The present power plant is on the Duruo river, Michoacan, while the new one will be on the Rio Angulo, in the same state, about thirty-five miles distant.

AGED MAN BADLY HURT

H. C. FURSMAN THROWN FROM A STREET CAR.

Prominent Stockman Confined to Bed as Result of Injuries Sustained Last Thursday.

The carelessness of a motorman on the Cheyenne Canon line is said to be responsible for serious injuries sustained by H. C. Fursman, for 35 years a resident of this city and one of the most prominent stockmen of Colorado. On Thursday evening of last week Mr. Fursman was thrown violently to the ground while attempting to get off the car near his home, 225 Cheyenne road, owing to the car failing suddenly by the motorman.

He was picked up unconscious by the passengers and taken to his home, where it was found that he had sustained severe body bruises, besides several cuts about the face and head. Dr. P. C. Perkins was called and attended to the patient's injuries. It will be a couple of weeks before Mr. Fursman will be able to leave his bed, to which he has been confined ever since the accident. He is 64 years of age and the severe shock to his system may result in more serious complications.

One of the passengers, who is a clerk in Burgess' store, was an eyewitness to the accident, which happened on Maple street in Ivywild about 7 o'clock in the evening. When seen at his home last night Mr. Fursman would not say as to whether or not he will bring suit against the Colorado Springs and Interurban railway company for damages.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11.—Officials of the Jamestown exposition today filed with Secretary Shaw a contract providing for the disbursement of a $1,000,000 loan by the government to the exposition company. Secretary Shaw accepted the contract, and the appropriation will be made immediately available.

BOSSES OPPOSED

MEASURES FAVORED BY MANAGERS DELAYED.

CAUCUS CALLED BY CHAIRMAN

REPUBLICAN MEMBERS OF BOTH HOUSES TO MEET.

SEVERAL BILLS ENDANGERED

Majority Little Inclined to Consider Bills Indorsed by Republican State Platform—Bill to Increase Salaries May Die. House Has a Busy Day.

Special to The Gazette.

DENVER, Feb. 11.—Senator Stephen, chairman of the joint caucus of the Sixteenth general assembly, has called a meeting of Republican members for 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. The caucus has been made necessary by the actions of a number of the majority, who have seemed inclined to "pass up" all the measures favored by the Republican state platform. Both in the house and senate members have shown little inclination to favor measures introduced by request of the party managers. In most cases little open opposition has been manifested, but the captious objections, the long delays and the frequency with which amendments have been brought forward, have alarmed those who have been honestly trying to fulfill all obligations of platform and promise. Especially has this been true regarding the railway bill in the senate and good roads measures already reached on the calendar of the house.

Governor Present at Caucus.

The governor is expected to be present during the caucus, and likely a number of the party leaders. The discussions are intended to cover a wide range of legislation, so that a definite course may be agreed upon. If it is not, railroad, insurance, banking and good roads legislation will be threatened and a prediction made by Mr. Dodge in the house this morning may come true. During a discussion of a bill proposing to increase the salary of the speaker of the house to $8 a day, the gentleman from Denver said: "If this raising of salaries keeps on, there will be no Republican in the speaker's chair in the Seventieth or any other assembly." This threat appeared so to the members that the bill was killed, and the house recalled its action on another measure proposing to raise the salaries of both auditor and secretary of state, and killed that also.

Senate Has Secret Session.

The senate this morning passed on second reading Senator DeLong's bill to give power of arrest to the agents of the humane society. A similar bill was killed in the house last week, when occasion was taken by different representatives to abuse our humane society agents for their manner of enforcing laws. The senate showed no opposition whatever to the bill.

Senator Stephen's bill to repeal the law establishing the state board of arbitration also passed second reading without opposition. The senator argued that the board had proven good for nothing, and being only an expense. Most of the afternoon was spent in secret session over a bill concerned with the age of consent law.

Senator De La Vergne's bill to regulate the sale of ores and minerals and providing that ownership shall remain with the consignor until its real value has been determined, went over on request of Senator Bohn, representing ore buyers.

Senator De La Vergne's bill to make a felony of removing, breaking, severing or separating ore from within a mine with intent to steal, was passed on second reading. Senator Scott asked that the word "grand" be struck out, thus removing the felony part of the crime. It was not agreed to.

The senate agreed to Senator Harrison's bill to remove a defect in the laws regarding handling of money by agents. The present law makes the agent, in effect, a partner in the transaction, so that he cannot be punished for either theft or embezzlement.

Salary Increase Bill May Die.

A bill to employ convicts in coal mines met such opposition that it was passed over for a time. The bill, introduced last week, to raise the salaries of governor, supreme judges and judges of the district courts, was revived and went to the foot of the calendar.

A memorial asking that a suitable monument to President Abraham Lincoln be erected at Washington, was introduced by Senator Taylor and passed at once.

Twenty-three bills were on third reading, but the senate voted to put them over [illegible]. Senator Stephen explained that the real reason he favored the motion was that he was afraid enough votes had not been secured against the Laton libel bill to defeat that measure.

Both senate and house adjourned over to Wednesday morning, in order that proper respect might be paid to the memory of Abraham Lincoln tomorrow. While no session of either body will be held, committees will be [illegible]. The appropriations committee of the house will meet with the finance committee of the senate to try to agree on the items in the general appropriations bill.

House Has Busy Day.

The house of representatives had a busy day, opening its morning with the consideration of Mr. Collins' bill concerning the giving of bonds for public officers by surety companies. In its

REGULATION OF COAL LANDS

Proposed Legislation Is Discussed at Conference.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11.—Representative Lacey of Iowa, chairman of the house committee on public lands, and Representative Martin of that committee conferred today with the president concerning proposed legislation for the conservation of coal lands. President [illegible] withdrawal from entry and leasing under a royalty system. It is the home committee's view, it is said, that the majority desires to continue the sale of coal lands under restrictions, and to lease limited acreage. The majority favor a president's operating plan for coal lands shall become [illegible] more than [illegible] acres passed into the control of any corporation or person.

PROMISES ARE DISREGARDED.

Germany Says U. S. Has Broken Faith With Her on Tariffs.

BERLIN, Feb. 11.—Before the Farmers National association today, Dr. Conrad, editor-in-chief of the Agrarian organ, Die Deutsche Tage Zeitung, complained that the United States has not kept promises made to Germany in return for the provisional granting of convertible tariff duties, and that German industrial circles report that German goods at American ports are treated more recklessly than ever. The German government, he asserted, is in a position to compel America to make concessions, inasmuch as Germany buys twice as much in America as she sells there.

Resolutions that the government watch and see what concessions the United States is going to make before a further extension of the present special arrangement were proposed by Dr. Conrad and adopted.

PREPARATIONS FOR WAR

NICARAGUA SOON TO INVADE HONDURAS.

Minister Corea Denies Stories Saying Influence Is at Work Which Will Prevent Conflict.

PANAMA, Feb. 11.—The Associated Press received the following dispatch from President Bonilla of Honduras:

"Nicaragua is concentrating a considerable armed force upon the frontier of Honduras without having made a declaration of war. We are assured an invasion will take place soon. Honduras is ready to repel the aggressor."

MANUEL BONILLA.

A well known Central American merchant, who is familiar with the present designs of the various republics, informed the correspondent of the Associated Press tonight that President Zelaya of Nicaragua, believing he holds the balance of power in Central America, wants to put the matter to a test, and that he will oppose intervention by the United States.

SAN SALVADOR, Feb. 11.—The representative of the Associated Press spoke to the president of Salvador, Don Pedro Lagos, regarding the Honduras-Nicaraguan trouble. The president pointed out that the difficulty is distinctly confined to Honduras and Nicaragua. Salvador stands as a friendly mediator. The court of arbitration was dissolved because Nicaragua refused to obey its order that the forces on the frontier be disarmed. The Corinto agreement has thus been broken.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11.—Minister Corea of Nicaragua today had a long conference with Assistant Secretary of State Baron regarding the situation in Central America.

"You may be assured of one thing," said Mr. Corea. "There will be no war between Honduras and Nicaragua. Although advices from my government are that President Bonilla of Honduras withdrew from the arbitration at San Salvador, there are influences now at work which will avert a conflict."

DOCTORS BELIEVED GUILTY

Deaths of Victor and Cripple Creek Women Result From Criminal Operations.

CRIPPLE CREEK, Colo., Feb. 11.—Two doctors, one living in Denver and the other in Cripple Creek, may be charged with manslaughter or murder for performing criminal operations on Mrs. Forest O. Babcock of Victor and Miss Marguerite Scott Moore, of 327 South Sixth street, Cripple Creek.

The names of the two alleged physicians are being suppressed until further investigation can be made. It is probable that their identity will be concealed until informations can be filed against them and warrants issued and served.

PRESIDENT TAKES A HAND

Would Bar Papers From Mails Carrying Stories of Thaw Trial.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11.—The following statement was given out at the White house today:

"The president has communicated with Postmaster General Cortelyou to know whether it is feasible to bar from the mails the papers that give the full disgusting particulars of the Thaw case. He does not know whether it is feasible, but if it is he wishes it done."

Postmaster General Cortelyou declines to discuss the matter or to indicate what, if any, action will be taken by the department. The president's letter will be referred to Assistant Attorney General Graham of the postoffice department for a legal opinion. It is expected that the legal decision of the department will expedite the matter.

GRAZING PROBLEM

GOVERNMENT POLICY IS DISCUSSED AT LENGTH.

PUBLIC HEARING IS HELD

SENATE COMMITTEE ON AGRICULTURE HEARS GRIEVANCES.

ALL INTERESTS REPRESENTED

Cattlemen and Sheepmen Criticise Each Other—President Sends Letter to Senator Warren, in Which He Outlines Position Regarding Government Control.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11.—Government policy in regard to the control of grazing land in the public domain and the interests of large and small cattlemen and the sheepmen and the effect of the protection of stockmen upon the homesteaders were considered today at a public hearing before the senate committee on agriculture.

The hearing was had on an amendment by Senator Burkett, of Nebraska, to the agricultural appropriation bill, authorizing the secretary of agriculture to district the unreserved lands and charge and collect reasonable fees for grazing. The cattlemen were represented by members of the American National Livestock association, who favored the measure, while the sheepmen, represented by members of the National Wool Growers association, opposed it. During the proceedings a letter from President Roosevelt addressed to Senator Warren was read. It indorsed general control by the government of grazing lands, but insisted upon the protection of the homesteaders, and arraigned the sheepmen severely.

Criticise Each Other.

The cattlemen and sheepmen criticised each other, and defended their own motives. The cattlemen made no defense of the charges that they had been violators of the law, and the sheepmen asserted that it was necessary for fencers of public lands to make their peace with the government, or "they would be convicted, if ever brought to trial."

A. F. Doolittle, of the American National Livestock association, outlined the position of the cattlemen in favor of government control and then called on individual cattlemen for statements. J. M. Boardman, of Helena, Mont., asserted that every cattleman had violated laws in regard to fencing. "Why, if you want to get the list of violators, just take the membership of the Cattleman's association," he said. "Including yourself?" asked Chairman Proctor.

"Yes, but I have taken my fences down," replied Mr. Boardman. He added that he had complied with the dictator and could no longer get favoritism.

To Protect Small Raisers.

T. W. Gray of Gunnison, Colo., spoke on the leasing system, in order to protect small raisers of cattle in Colorado against Utah sheep raisers bringing in large flocks that quickly reduce ranges to a condition where cattle starve.

"We have to fight these sheepmen or get nothing," he said.

"Which do you do?" asked Senator Long.

"Ask in criminal courts of Colorado," replied Mr. Gray.

He described the high grazing in Colorado as ideal for the small cattlemen.

"With the sheepmen barred," suggested Senator Dolliver.

The witness replied sarcastically that the altitude is too high for sheep. He was asked about the "unwritten law" governing the amount of range land a bonafide settler might use. He said the only unwritten law in his section concerned the number of sheep that might be brought in from other sections.

"What is that limit?" asked Senator Dolliver.

"Well," he replied, "some had dropped in at once. But the sheepmen did not take that many away."

Colonel Lockhart Talks.

Colonel Lockhart of Colorado Springs, Colorado, and C. E. Ayer of Rock Wells, spoke briefly in favor of the amendment.

"I want to build walls for myself and my neighbors," said C. W. Merchant of Lordsburg, N. M., who then admitted that cattlemen in his section had fenced tracts for miles north and south and east and west, the fences had been up 25 years. He told of a case a few years ago, when a special agent of the government who made the investigation, frankly said that the cattlemen had 40 per cent of the stock and sent the sheepmen off the ranges. The cattlemen, he said, then went to Santa Fe and had a law passed permitting the fencing of public roads. As soon as he could locate a public road any place he chose, it was not long before we had the fences back."

He favored government leasing of the lands in order to legalize the fencing, and he declared that the cattlemen would not object to homestead settlements within the leased tracts.

Dr. J. M. Wilson of Douglas, Wyo., vice president of the National Sheep Growers association, suggested that after the defense of homesteaders by the cattlemen, it might be well to look for wings on the hen.

"A trail of blood of assassinations of stock owners and destroyed, has been left across the country from California to Nebraska, as the result of the [illegible] thetical question covering the evidence in the case. The question was almost record breaking in length, a comprehensive resume of the entire case including Mr. Thaw's personal narrative.

In it Mr. Delmas accused Stanford White of having drugged Miss Nesbit and of having attempted to resume communication or relations with her subsequent to her marriage. Mr. Jerome objected to the references in it as was amended to embrace the evidence of record as to the disputed points. It was on the amended question that Dr. Wagner gave it as his opinion that Harry Thaw did not know because of defective reason that his act in killing Stanford White was wrong.

When the expert is taken in hand by Mr. Jerome he will have to give detailed reasons for his opinion. Dr. Evans of the New Jersey state hospital for the insane will be the first witness for the defense tomorrow.

Women Visitors Barred

A new rule by Justice Fitzgerald barring from the court all women not engaged in active newspaper work went into effect today. Many of those who had been in the habit of occupying the seats behind the counsel table were present and called to avail. The court officers had received orders this time and applied the rule. As a result there were many benches in the court room vacant.

That the defense would proceed with the struggle to have Harry Thaw's wife accepted in evidence as testimony of his unsoundness of mind was indicated by Mr. Delmas who asked that Mr. J. D. Lyon be called as the first witness.

Mr. Lyon testified that he had been engaged in the banking business in Pittsburg for many years and was acquainted with the Mellon National bank.

You are acquainted with the defendant Harry K. Thaw? asked Mr. Delmas.

Mr. Jerome objected, protesting against the defense proceeding with a new witness while the examination of Miss Evelyn Thaw remains uncompleted. He thought the defense should offer some explanation of its purpose in interrupting Mrs. Thaw's testimony.

Mr. Delmas stated that when court adjourned last week the will of the defendant was under discussion and had been ruled out because of insufficiency of the proof of the document. It was now proposed, he said, to proceed with the further identification of the will.

Mr. Delmas stated that he considered that enough evidence had been introduced in the shape of the testimony of an expert and of laymen who were witnesses to the occurrence to establish a prima facie case of unsoundness of mind. All he was attempting to do, he said, was to interrupt Mrs. Thaw's testimony for the purpose of better enlightening the district attorney of the defendant's unsoundness of mind at the time of the shooting. He thought that in doing this he was complying with the district attorney's wishes.

Will Comes Up.

Mr. Delmas asked that Mr. Lyon be allowed merely to identify an envelope and the package (the will) it contained. Then if the district attorney objected further he would defer for the time being the offer of the will in evidence.

Mr. Jerome in arguing that his objection should be sustained went into the discussion of the rules of evidence which prevented him from controverting the truth of Mrs. Thaw's testimony as to the story she told her husband judicially. Mr. Jerome said the court could not say as to whether or not the story Mrs. Thaw told her husband had an effect on his mind.

I must object to this line of argument by the district attorney, interrupted Mr. Delmas. He is addressing himself to facts not in evidence.

Justice Fitzgerald stated that all the statements by Mrs. Thaw are on the record practically by consent, but now the judgment of the court was invoked. The objection to the introduction of the documents on Friday was a technical one, but it was sound. There was a witness on the stand when court adjourned whose testimony has not been finished.

It seems to me, said the court, that either that witness should be finished with or consent should be given to proceed with this witness.

Mr. Jerome, after a short whispered conference with Mr. Delmas, withdrew his objection, and Mr. Lyon was permitted to give his testimony.

How long have you known Harry K. Thaw? asked Mr. Delmas.

Ever since he was a boy, replied Mr. Lyon.

I hand you an envelope and ask you if you ever saw it before?

Mr. Delmas handed the witness a large envelope of heavy brown paper.

I have seen this before, said the witness. It was in my possession.

When did it come into your possession?

Some time near April 1, 19[illegible]. I can't tell the exact date.

Was the envelope sealed and did it apparently contain a package?

It was sealed and apparently contained a package.

How did you receive the package?

From the hands of Mr. Thaw.

Mr. Lyon said he was familiar with the defendant's handwriting and that this was his handwriting on the envelope.

What did you do with the envelope?

Placed it in my box in the safe deposit vault in the bank.

How long did it remain there?

Until the latter part of November, 19[illegible], when I took it out.

What did you do with it?

I gave it to my stenographer, Charles Johnston.

Mr. Delmas showed the witness another envelope and asked if it was one which he identified as that in his stenographer's.

Mr. Jerome took the witness and under cross examination he stated that there were doubtless many letters from Thaw in the bank at Pittsburg.

Can you as vice president of the bank produce those letters?

Yes, I suppose so.

Will you?

Why, yes, if you want them.

Mr. Jerome then stated he could not continue the cross examination without the letters and asked the court order that the letters be produced.

Mr. Delmas objected.

What's the matter? asked Justice. Don't you want these letters produced?

I haven't the slightest objection to the introduction of any letter that defendant Thaw wrote, was the reply.

He objected to the letters being turned over to the district attorney. It was finally agreed that the letters should be turned over to the clerk of the court.

Gleason Is Called.

Mr. Lyon was excused and John B. Gleason was called.

Mr. Gleason has had possession of most of the documents in the tragedy.

Mr. Gleason said the envelope containing the will had been in his possession since December 11, 1906, when he received it by mail from Pittsburg. Absolutely no changes had been made in the document from that time to this, except the marks for identification put on the papers in court.

Mr. Jerome concluded the examination of the will direct from Mr. Lyon to Mr. Gleason, saying he would not require the defense to produce Mr. Lyon's secretary as a witness to that fact. The offer of the will in evidence was deferred.

Mr. Jerome asked only one or two questions on cross examination, bringing out nothing new. Mr. Delmas then asked that Mrs. Evelyn Nesbit Thaw be recalled.

Mrs Thaw Called

It has been testified by this witness, said Mr. Delmas, when the counsel of the defendant had taken her place on the witness stand, that she wrote a note to her husband and the Madison Square garden. This I now submit is the testimony of the learned district attorney. I now ask the learned district attorney to produce that paper.

Mr. Jerome, etc.

We have a piece of paper, he said. I don't know that it is the same, but I will see if it.

Famous Note Produced

The acquiescence of the district attorney was a decided change of attitude from last week when he sat silent while Mr. Delmas asked that the witness proceed.

What is the ruling as to note, Mr. Delmas asked the witness.

Did you ever hear Mr. Thaw refer to their mutual friends, Mr. and Mrs. Stanford White?

Mr. Jerome at once objected on the ground that it was a leading question. Mr. Delmas claimed that the witness had been asked a question in regard to a conversation between Mr. Thaw and the defendant, and that the witness had answered in the affirmative.

Justice Fitzgerald held that there was no rule of law which would allow the defendant's own claims that things were made against his interest.

Mr. Delmas claimed that if he could [illegible] the result of insane delusions he would have [illegible] them.

Justice Fitzgerald wished to know the point at issue. Mr. Delmas said he expected to show that Mr. Thaw had told his wife of the affair between Mr. and Mrs. White.

Mr. Jerome at once objected on the ground that it was not competent to prove a fact by showing that Mr. Thaw had told his wife of it.

Justice Fitzgerald sustained the objection.

Mr. Delmas said it was impossible for him to make the question more broadly and he would have to make an exception.

Carried a Pistol

Did you ever see a pistol in Mr. Thaw's possession?

Yes, replied Mr. Thaw.

When for the first time?

I cannot say exactly, replied the witness. It was some time after Christmas, 1906.

Do you know if he ever carried the pistol anywhere except when he was in New York?

He never carried it out except when in New York.

Mrs. Thaw, the name of Mrs. McKenzie has been mentioned in number of times in this case. Will you state when you first met her?

I think it was in 1903.

Did you ever tell Mr. Thaw of a visit made to Mrs. McKenzie when she was sick in a hotel at Lyle, Stanford White was present?

Yes.

State when you told Mr. Thaw.

Jerome Objects

Jerome objected, claiming this was an attempt to bring up cumulative evidence without the foundation fact being first shown.

The defendant under the ruling is in an unfortunate condition, said Mr. Delmas.

We are trying to prove the mental condition of the defendant by his acts, actions and declarations. He was mentally insane and we are trying to show it by his acts of 1902 and after this. [illegible]

Justice Fitzgerald sustained the objection.

Mr. Thaw, did you in any conversation with your husband, late to him that after your marriage Mrs. McKenzie had said [illegible]

Stanford White [illegible] witness [illegible] the time being [illegible] husband that—

Jerome's objection to this also was sustained.

Mr. Delmas asked if he was to understand the court rules on specific questions of fact that the conversation between Mr. Thaw and the defendant were to be all [illegible]

I think, unless should [illegible] the court rules [illegible] letter [illegible] gerald.

I [illegible] desire for an instant to transgress the spirit of the court's rulings, said Mr. Delmas, and [illegible] the spirit of the rulings is as indicated will do it.

The [illegible] has gone [illegible] the matter is at desire, said the judge.

Did you attend the theatre with Harry Thaw and a lady [illegible] 19[illegible] Mr. Delmas [illegible]

Mr. Lyon objected on the ground [illegible] that some alienist should [illegible] Harry Thaw [illegible] influenced by their presence of mind and that the story [illegible] might have affected his mind in [illegible] was called to indicate.

The objection was sustained.

What effect upon the defendant did the presence of Stanford White have? asked Mr. Delmas.

As in [illegible] objected and was ruled.

Did you return from Europe in 1901 on a North German Lloyd steamer as Mr. Thaw [illegible] steamer?

[illegible]

Not Allowed to Answer

When on the steamer do you remember whether Mr. Thaw told you anything about a certain person and what happened to her at the hands of Stanford White?

Yes.

The court sustained an objection by Mr. Jerome and the witness was not allowed to tell the story.

In Paris asked Mr. Delmas did you tell Mr. Thaw about a young woman who was known between you as "The Pie Girl?"

Yes.

Mrs. Thaw was not allowed to detail this story either.

When did Mr. Thaw make his first proposal of marriage to you the one which you accepted?

I think it was about April 1, 19[illegible].

What did he say to you at that time?

Again the district attorney objected and was sustained.

A document was shown Mr. Thaw who said that it was first shown to him by Harry Thaw in January 1906, she thought.

Did he make an declaration regarding it at that time?

Another objection was sustained.

Did you ever hear Mr. Thaw refer to statements he had made to the Society for the Prevention of Children and for the Society of Vice?

Mr. Thaw was not allowed to answer.

Mr. Delmas then announced that as the court ruling prevented him from going further into these matters because of a lack of preliminary foundation he would ask leave to withdraw.

Why Mr. Delmas said that the [illegible] proceed.

Not the [illegible] note, Mr. Delmas asked the witness.

Did you ever hear Mr. Thaw refer to their mutual friends, Mr. and Mrs. Stanford White.

Mr. Jerome at once objected on the ground that it was not competent to prove a fact by showing that Mr. Thaw had told his wife of it.

OPERA HOUSE ATTRACTIONS

What the Press Agents Say

CRESTON CLARKE IN "THE RAGGED MESSENGER."

Acclaimed wherever it has been presented as the best emotional drama that has been seen in years, "The Ragged Messenger" will be the attraction at the Opera house this evening, with the popular actor, Creston Clarke, in the leading role of John Morton, the clergyman. Mr. Clarke can always be depended upon to give a finished performance. This season he is said to surpass in a purely modest role his admiration instinctively goes out to him, Mr. Clarke, as the silks and satins and courtly bearing of "Monsieur Beaucaire." There is that one word, that it's his work, and that is all. "The Ragged Messenger" is a most delightfully interesting play, dealing as it does with humanity and love. Seeing Mr. Clarke's charming delineation of the character of the minister, one cannot help wishing that there were really men like the Rev. John Morton in the world. He holds one's sympathy from the start, and in the tremendous scene at the close of the third act everybody's admiration instinctively goes out to him, for he then and there is revealed as a man who loves as all women wish to be loved, and who, though a minister, is willing, even eager, to defiance for the favor of his betrothed.

CRESTON CLARK,
Who Will Appear at the Opera House in "The Ragged Messenger," This Evening.

artistic interpretation last season of the highly romantic role of "Monsieur Beaucaire." As the critic of the Philadelphia Public Ledger put it, "The garb of that kindly minister with the great beating human heart; the pitiful of that man who wins and yet almost loses, fell as naturally on Mr.

"SERGEANT KITTY" COMING.

There are musical plays and musical plays, but the number of real operas is comparatively limited. "Sergeant Kitty," which will be seen at the Opera house next Saturday, is one of the number, for it has a plot, and a good one, music and clever attractive music, that lingers with an auditor long after the lights have gone out on the last act. Not only is the material offered in this opera good, but we are promised that it will be served to us by a company of unusual excellence, headed by petite, vivacious Helen Byron, an entertainer of the highest order. The other members of the company are most capable and the costumes both picturesque and elaborate. Reserved seats for this engagement will be on sale tomorrow morning. The prices for "Sergeant Kitty" will range from 50c to $1.50.

AMELIA BINGHAM IN "THE LILAC ROOM."

Whoever has been in love will like "The Lilac Room." Whoever believes in ghosts will love "The Lilac Room." Whoever enjoys a stirring detective story will go wild over "The Lilac Room." None who like to see a good play, beautifully mounted and perfectly acted, can afford to miss "The Lilac Room." It is at one and the same time a play of hearts, a character study, a series of intensely dramatic incidents, and a mine of wit and humor. More than all else it brings to the boards of the Opera house next week that charming woman and sidelid actress, Amelia Bingham, giving her the best medium for the exhibition of her talents she has had since her dramatic elongement of a solid year at the Bijou theater, New York, in Clyde Fitch's "The Climbers." "The Lilac Room" was written especially for Miss Bingham by Evelyn Greenleaf Sutherland and Beulah Marie Dix. The authors have fitted Miss Bingham accurately, giving free scope for her natural comedy, and affording ample opportunity for display of the individual force and emotional sweep of which she is the well-known mistress. "The Lilac Room" likewise gives the actress occasion to wear some remarkably handsome gowns and in the arranging of scenery was a chance for the artist who painted it to create several beautiful effects.

HARTMANN, VIOLINIST. TECHNICAL WIZARD.

The virtuoso is of the Kubelik school. He has a marvelous right wrist and five wonderful left fingers. His mechanical facility measured up to the standards of the new school of Hungarian violin methods. He boldly challenged comparison with Kubelik by playing the Wieniawski "Russian Air" after the Hubay "Zephyr," the latter air an encore, both of them having been chosen by the other virtuoso who achieved such surpassing effects with them last winter. He has drilled his fingers and bowing arm into playing them quite remarkably. The whole box full of Paganini tricks is at his command. Harmonics, both natural and artificial, taken at great speed and mixed with natural notes, the most difficult position jumps and the most complicated fingering, left hand pizzicati mixed in the most rapid bowed passages, trills and octaves with bowing speed to the very top of the finger board and a lot of other things at nothing short of astonishing speed and richness, from bed to toe, with apparently equal ease and ease. His command over the point of the bow is quite remarkable, the strokes on Paganini even on the string, with the bow almost as heavily as with the hand.

GIRL BABY'S AWFUL ECZEMA

Sight of Eye Destroyed by Disease—Tried Five Doctors but Grew Worse—In Agony Eight Months—Parents Discouraged, Until They Tried Cuticura Remedies

IN ONE WEEK ALL SORES DISAPPEARED

"Our little girl, one year and a half old, was taken with eczema or that was what the doctor said it was. We called in the family doctor and he gave some tablets and said she would be all right in a few days. The eczema grew worse and we called in doctor No. 2. He said she was teething, as soon as the teeth were through she would be all right. But she still grew worse. Doctor No. 3 said it was eczema. By this time she was nothing but a yellow, greenish sore. Well, he said he could help her, so we let him try it about a week. One morning we discovered a little yellow pimple on one of her eyes. Of course we phoned for doctor No. 3. He came over and looked her over and said that he could not do anything more for her, that we had better take her to some eye specialist, since it was an ulcer. So we went to Oswego to doctor No. 4, and he said the eyesight was gone, but that he could help it. We thought we would try doctor No. 5. Well, that proved the same, only he charged $10 more than doctor No. 4. We were nearly discouraged. I saw one of the Cuticura advertisements in the paper and thought we would try the Cuticura Treatment, so I went and purchased a set of Cuticura Remedies, which cost me $1, and in three days our daughter, who had been sick about eight months, showed great improvement, and in one week all sores had disappeared. Of course it could not restore the eyesight, but if we had used Cuticura in time I am confident that it would have saved the eye. We think there is no remedy so good for any skin trouble or impurity of the blood as Cuticura. Mr. and Mrs. Frank Abbott, R. F. D. No. 3, Fulton, Oswego Co., N. Y., August 17, 1906."

STEVE ADAMS' TRIAL BEGINS

First Step Taken Toward Convicting W. F. of M. Leaders, Charged With Killing Steunenberg.

SPOKANE, Wash., Feb. 11.—The great legal battle for the life of Steve Adams began this morning in the picturesque mining town of Wallace, Idaho.

On one side are the forces of the state, seeking Adams' conviction, the first step toward convicting the leaders of the Western Federation of Miners who are charged with the assassination of former Governor Frank Steunenberg of Idaho; on the other is the powerful federation, declaring the charges are false and an attempt by the mine owners to break up the union.

The crime charged against Steve Adams is the murder of Fred Tyler, a settler, who disappeared from his timber claim on Marble Creek about August 16, 1904, and whose body was found later.

Severe Pains

When a prominent nerve is affected, the pain is severe. It is called neuralgia. It may be in either the head or body. Relief comes only when this nerve trouble is overcome. By its soothing and strengthening influence upon the nervous system Dr. Miles' Nervine removes the cause.

"It was about two years ago that I was taken down with what the doctors claimed was neuralgia, and some called it lightning rheumatism. Sharp pains would go from one place to another, mostly in my head, and they would last two or three days before I could get relief. During these spells I would be so nervous that I hardly knew what I was doing. The pains were so severe and exhausting that my husband would have to steady me when walking across the room. I would have fever, and my heart would palpitate, and in a day or two I would feel better. Just as soon as I would expose myself the very least I was sure to have a spell of neuralgia. I have taken lots of doctor's medicine, but I might just as well take water. My aunt kept writing me to just try Dr. Miles' Nervine, and I am thankful that I was persuaded to do so, for the bottle has cured me. Now never a bit of my system."

cows and other men of little means," said Robert Taylor of Abbott, Neb., in pleading for the Burkett amendment.

E. J. Bell of Albany county, Wyoming, a cattleman, sheepman and farmer, said he was willing to have government control if Wyoming men were permitted to say what the grazing fees should be in that state.

Although Secretary of Agriculture Wilson and Chief Forester Pinchot were present, Mr. Bell pointed out that it was a mistake to put 60,000,000 acres in the hands of one man to fix the price to be paid for grazing. "It is too great a test of one man's honesty," he said.

After a number of other cattlemen were heard, Dr. J. M. Wilson of Douglas, as the spokesman for the National Wool Growers association, of which Senator Warren is president, opposed the amendment. Mr. Walsh said that to turn loose an army of special agents to enforce the proposed law would be to invite corruption.

Roosevelt's Letter.

The president's letter to Senator Warren follows:

The White House, Washington, Feb. 11, 1907.

My Dear Senator Warren: In accordance with our recent conversation, I am very glad to send you this short statement of my position regarding government control of the range. I am fully in accord with your view that the local control of the range should be in the hands of western men, familiar with stock raising, and I believe in full local participation in the management of the range. Of course, you must not divide the responsibility to a point where you cannot hold anyone responsible, but co-operation between the stockmen and the government officers is absolutely essential.

The grazing fees should be small, at present, at first. I am not anxious that the government should get a new revenue from grazing on the public range, but only enough to pay for administration and improvement, and any surplus might well go to the states and territories in which the fees are collected.

As soon as a bill for range control is passed, it goes without saying that such control should not be taken hurriedly, but gradually as grazing districts can be organized. There is one point essential in this policy of range control—the homesteader must be protected in his rights to create a home for his family, and he must have whatever range rights are necessary for that purpose.

It is unlawful at present to fence the public domain. All fences unlawfully maintained will have to be taken down. Unless congress takes action to legalize reasonable and necessary fencing through government control of the range, there will be a very serious loss to stockmen throughout the west whose business in many cases can not be conducted without fencing, and this loss will often fall hardest on the small man.

I can not consent to a clause continuing for a year, or for any length of time, the present illegal fencing.

The utmost I will consent to, so far as my power extends in the matter of legislation, is to continue such fencing as in my judgment is in right and proper for me to continue. My first care is for the homesteader and the small stockman. The opposition to the proposal now comes primarily from the big men who graze wandering flocks of sheep and who do not promote the real settlement of the country. These men are the men whose interests are hostile to those of the homebuilders, who wish to eat out and destroy the country which he desires permanently and who when they have thus ruined the land of the homesteader and small stockman move elsewhere to repeat the process of devastation. Many of the sheepmen who are permanent dwellers sympathize with our movements. Others, unfortunately, sympathize with their nomadic brothers, the ultimate result of whose actions is to destroy the country.

It must be distinctly understood that the opposition to the proposed measure for government control is opposition aimed at the interest of the homemaker, the homesteader, or the small stockman. As the large stockman who desires that the country shall become better and not worse, and that it is the interest of those who think that in continuing the present system they will be able to monopolize the public domain and who are quite indifferent as to whether in the long run they destroy it.

Sincerely yours,
THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

original form the bill was held to be merely a slight amendment to the present law, but by the time all the amendments were made it became largely the same bill that was defeated two years ago. That measure provided that all public officers might get surety companies on their bonds and tax the people with the costs. When this form appeared to the mind of members the opposition became fierce. Mr. Healy was in the chair during the consideration in committee of the whole and one of his rulings created a great deal of feeling. The first was that when the committee voted down the usual favorable recommendation on the bill it did not necessarily kill the measure. His other was his refusal to receive a motion that the committee rise and report. The effect of this motion was to place the bill at the foot of the calendar, thus practically killing it. Mr. Healy held that the only motion he would entertain was a motion to rise, report progress and ask leave to sit again, which would keep the bill alive and at the head of the calendar. Finally, in open house, it was moved to return the bill to the committee on judiciary, which was the motion.

LINCOLN'S BIRTHDAY.

TODAY is the ninety-eighth anniversary of the birth of the man who by common consent is regarded as the greatest of American Presidents and one of the greatest of American statesmen. Lincoln was the "preserver of his country" in as true a sense as Washington was its "father," but aside from his qualities as a statesman, it is the personal element in his makeup that appeals most strongly to the minds of the people. His many-sided character is one of the few in history that bear the closest scrutiny from whatever viewpoint they may be regarded. The more intimately it is studied the stronger, the stronger, the more lovable it appears, and it is this quality, more than the fact that he probably saved the Union from destruction, that will cause his fame to endure for all time.

Lincoln is more a popular hero today than ever before; not only this, but he is more universally esteemed than ever before. There is no longer a feeling against him in the South, for the old hostile sentiment is effaced as completely as the old Northern feeling against Lee and the other leaders who were once called "rebels." In every part of the country Lincoln is estimated as nearly as possible at his true worth as one of the greatest and certainly the kindliest and most humane statesmen this nation has produced.

MUNICIPAL GOVERNMENT AND MUNICIPAL POLITICS.

HOWEVER well satisfied with their national and state governments, you may be, most Americans who have looked into the subject are prepared to admit that in the government of cities we have a great deal to learn from Europe. James Bryce, the newly-appointed British Ambassador to the United States, declared in his monumental work, "The American Commonwealth," that this is "the one conspicuous failure" in our system of government, and without doubt the assertion is as true today as when it was written a quarter-century ago.

But there is some cheering fact. The American people are alive to the evil and are working to cure it. Numerous evidences of this have been apparent for the last two or three years. We do more muck-raking in this country than they do in Europe, so our people learn of abuses quicker and more thoroughly than they do over there. Such a scandal, for example, as the one caused by the exposure of the Philadelphia gas steal last year would have been hushed up in England, or, if not hushed up, it would have been given very little publicity. Whenever any form of official wrongdoing is uncovered in this country we raise a great hue and cry, where the English will go on a still hunt, but it is probable that in the long run one method will be more effective than theirs.

This is the view taken by Frederic C. Howe in a recent comparison of "The American and the British City," published in Scribner's Magazine. Mr. Howe admits that our cities of our municipal government are fully as bad as they are painted, and that in most important respects we are far behind European cities, but he argues that the frank American recognition of existing evils and our freedom from mediæval tradition and class control justifies the hope that within another generation American cities will become the best governed in the world.

It is coming to be more and more generally admitted that one of the prime causes of misgovernment of American cities is partisan rule. The Republican and Democratic parties were formed, and are maintained to deal with political questions of national scope, their declarations of principles, as set forth in their platforms, misfit as they have slowly crystallized during the generations of party existence, have to do entirely with national matters. There is no such thing as a Republican theory, or a Democratic theory of municipal government. There can be such thing as a partisan solution of Republican or Democratic principles or methods of conducting the affairs of cities. Perhaps it is in part this lack of a definite governmental idea that has given rise to the manifold abuses of municipal government; at any rate the practice now is for each party to fight as hard as it can for municipal control, not with the object of carrying out any specific policy or line of action, but of securing the offices.

When this is the highest aim of a political organization it is not at all surprising that misgovernment is the result. Nearly every city of any consequence in the land is thus made the plaything of one or the other of the two leading political parties, and in a great many cases it is regarded as a rich field to be exploited for the personal profit of the party bosses and their dependants.

This is the condition that has given rise to the widespread demand for the elimination of partisanship from city affairs. Of course it will never be possible to wipe out partisanship entirely, for as long as there are two contending parties, by whatever names they may call themselves, there will be partisanship, but it is possible and entirely practicable to separate municipal politics from national and state politics. In recent years it has been done with varying degrees of success in a number of cities, and two years ago it was done in Colorado Springs. Most of the members of the present city administration, both in the council and in the executive offices, were elected on a non-partisan ticket, and the result has been a distinct gain for the cause of better government. The administration now nearing its end has not been faultless, but on the whole it has been the best one that Colorado Springs has had within the memory of most of its citizens.

At the present time the perpetuation of the clean, progressive, businesslike kind of government we are now having is the most important issue before the people of this city. No community ever stands still; it must advance or else it slips backward. For two years Colorado Springs has been advancing, and now it rests with itself to decide whether they will continue to advance for another two years, or go back into the old rut in which their municipal affairs were run during the Republican machine regime.

It was for this purpose—to perpetuate good government—that the Municipal League was recently organized by about 150 representative citizens, both men and women. The league purposes to place a ticket in the field and make an active fight during the forthcoming campaign, and by every consideration of good government and good citizenship it deserves the hearty support of the whole people, by which alone it can win.

"Colorado, She Sits Forever in the Sun," is the catchline of a large display advertisement now being run by the New York Central Railroad in the daily papers of New York and other Eastern cities. Following it is this bit of good gospel: "There was only one day during the month of December, 1906, in which the sun did not shine some part of the day, according to the official records of Colorado Springs. Colorado's mountains are full of gold and its skies are full of sunshine." That's the kind of advertising that brings results, and fortunately the New York Central and other enterprising lines which handle the business from the East to this state know it.

SIMPLE SIMON GUGGENHEIM.

From Life.

The papers printed a dispatch from Denver, dated January 15, which told about an interview with Simon Guggenheim, the new senator-elect from Colorado. It sounds like a true story. A strong aroma of devotion to the public exhales from the interview. The new senator's sentiments are creditable to his heart, yet some of them stir the reader to rumination.

For example, Senator Simon says:

"Its up to me. If I'm an honest man and work honestly for this state I'm going to make my mark honored in America, and I want to do that above everything."

It is an honorable aspiration, but the senator overestimated the scarcity of honest men in the senate. Being an honest man and working honestly for Colorado won't in itself suffice to make his name honored in America. It takes a lot more than that. It is not even certain that that is enough to make his name honored in Colorado. It would depend on how effectual his work was.

The senator goes on to say that he has money enough and is quite independent. And he adds:

"I am going to the senate to represent all the people of Colorado, and I mean to do it in a way that will make all the people my friends. If I do, honest I will have their support; if I am not, they will villify me. I want to make a name for my loyalty and bring honor to my race."

He is an optimist, isn't he? He thinks he can be loyal and represent all the people of Colorado in a way that will make them all his friends. He could hardly do that, even if he were willing to be crooked. He will have to disappoint some of them and they won't like it. If he satisfies a majority of them he will do well. Not even Senator Crane of Massachusetts does much better than that, and our veteran and experienced senators from New York do not do so well.

"I don't pretend to be a statesman," proceeds the senator. I reckon he means to say that he forswears all an expansionist policy for Colorado, and that he has cut absolutely free from business (at some personal sacrifices) and will go to Washington uncontrolled.

But, dear man, you ought to be a statesman if you are going to be a senator. Just from decent self respect you ought to pretend to be at least as much of a statesman as Senator William A. Clark, who, like yourself, has owned mines. It is not enough to have stripped yourself of business. That in itself is not a qualification for a senatorship. You should have acquired something. Have you ever acquired anything except money that will qualify you to be a senator? We wonder.

You go on to say that you think the time is coming when men of wealth will only be too glad to make personal sacrifices to serve their country faithfully.

Mr. Simon, get over that idea about personal sacrifices. What you mean is that men who have made all the money they want will prefer the public service to more money making. That isn't sacrifice, it is merely intelligent choice of almost human intelligence. But it is creditable, and we think as you do, that it is going to be more common.

Good luck to you, Simon! You sound as green as grass, but maybe you are a good fellow. You know one thing, anyhow; you know something. Take along your smelter and smelt Tillman. If you can separate his gold from his dross, that will be a work to make you famous. And Jeff Davis of Arkansas—smelt him, too, and see if you can get any valuable residue. We guess you won't.

Oh, Simon, if you could only smell the common smelt, using and refine it—what a useful worker.

Good luck to you, Simon!

A GREAT BOON TO COLORADO.

From the Denver Republican.

The Colorado School of Forestry, recently organized as a department of Colorado college, occupies a unique position as the only school west of the Mississippi devoted exclusively to the training of expert professional foresters. The increasing demand for the services of such men and the utterly inadequate supply, need no demonstration. Germany with her comparatively small government forest reserves employs more than one thousand expert foresters. The United States with hundreds of millions of acres of reserves has at present less than two hundred trained men capable of protecting the existing forests, functionalizing their boundaries and directing such husbanding operations as are necessary to bring the forests to the highest and most lasting degree of productive efficiency. The demand has of late been further increased by the fact that their forested land can, under proper supervision, become a permanent source of income.

To supply these demands for foresters there are at present only five or six schools in the United States. One hundred such could hardly meet the situation.

The largest government reserves and the biggest forests in the country are in the west, and by far the most important forests from the farmers standpoint are in the Rocky mountains, yet until last year no school of forestry existed in this whole region. In 1905 General William J. Palmer and Dr. W. A. Bell presented to Colorado college a tract of 11,000 acres of forested land at Manitou park for the purpose of founding a forest school and in September last the school was opened at Colorado college, offering a three years' course in chemistry, physics, biology, engineering, etc., in addition to practical instruction given at Manitou park in the care, maintenance and extension of forests. It may safely be said that among General Palmer's many beneficent acts none will prove of more vital and lasting benefit to the state of Colorado than the founding of this school, for it means expert foresters in the future. Foresters mean the preservation and proper management of the forests of the state, and the forests mean an adequate and steady supply of water for the mine-owner, and cross-ties for the railroads, to say nothing of the water supply for our towns and cities which depends immediately upon the amount of standing timber at the headwaters of the streams. In fact it is difficult to point to a single industry in Colorado which is not directly or indirectly dependent upon the preservation of forests.

While undoubtedly much technical information in forestry and allied sciences can be given in college lecture rooms and laboratories, it is quite within bounds to say that without an outdoor laboratory in the form of a forested area of considerable extent, all the technical instruction and "book-learning" in the world would fail to produce practical foresters. The Yale school has its outdoor laboratory at Milford, PA., through the munificence of the father of the present head of the United States bureau of forestry. In Europe we have seen how the vast estates of Mr. George Vanderbilt in North Carolina, the Michigan and Wisconsin schools are supplemented by their respective states. Colorado's school, too, now has its outdoor laboratory and there is every prospect of a bright future if it receives the kind of support to which every school enterprise deserving of Mercy it undoubtedly needs. The college of which it is a part is not sufficiently endowed to meet its own running expenses, which the school itself has no means except its standing timber which obviously is of too great value for teaching purposes to be sacrificed in any way. Thus the school needs financial support. But more than that it needs the warm sympathy and the moral support of every citizen of Colorado. On behalf of this institution we earnestly bespeak such support.

WATER METERS AND WATER RATES.

To the Editor of The Gazette:

At the council chambers Saturday night, when the chairman of the water committee quoted from the ordinances of several cities where water meters are used or may be used at the option of the city or the consumer, there were but two cities, I believe—Harrisburg, Pa., and Chicago—where the consumer has to pay for the meter. I know nothing about Harrisburg, but Chicago, we all know, has millions invested in its plant and is at enormous expense keeping it in operation; in fact, it has never been self-sustaining, while the conditions in this city are entirely different.

Our system and plant (I say our system because I consider myself one of the owners) is a money-making proposition for the city, and not only maintains itself, pays interest on its bonds and provides for the sinking fund, but leaves a surplus which goes into the general fund. Now, if this is true, was it necessary to restrict the use of water or raise the rates, which the installation of meters has done for many of us? And yet we are asked to pay for the installation of these very meters! It seems to me that if we can afford to raise the salaries of mayor, councilmen and other city officials it is time taxpayers and the public generally were given some consideration.

This meter question has been discussed and discussed by many for the past five years, and seems to be no nearer a settlement than at the beginning. Meters should be used, when used, to prevent waste where it is known there is waste and where there is a shortage of water, but in our case (while there is a dry and a warning of shortage every year) there has never been one. If there is any curtailing necessary, if there is any water waste, it is not on the premises of business men or on business property, but on lawns where an inch hose is allowed to run for hours without a nozzle, and where meters should be put, if anywhere. We all know that double the quantity of water is used on lawns that is good for them.

Our worthy water committee chairman is worried because some have paid already and he doesn't know where he is going to get the money to pay them back if the ordinance is repealed. Well, if the money went into the water fund, as it should have, that is the fund to go to and the amount paid by consumers with meters over what they paid when on a flat rate will more than make the amount required. The city has the meters and has lost nothing. Many paid, but under protest, and only when they were threatened that their water would be shut off if the meter was not paid for by a certain date. Many did not know when the meters were installed till the bill for payment came in and their water was shut off for default. Many of the meters are on city property and the city cannot sell them nor the consumer own them. They are a part of the water system as much as the tap at the main. A rental charge has been suggested which is as unjust as the forcing of the purchase would be. If there must be a meter it is there for the city's benefit and should belong to the city. Why was $5,000, more or less, invested in meters? I cannot imagine unless some one wanted to do business with the meter manufacturers and did it.

A DISTRICT ATTORNEY'S DUTY.

From the New York Press.

"What" asks one of our contemporaries, "is a district attorney for?"

Why, a district attorney is to make a big noise in the campaign for five or six weeks before election, to promise things that are never to be done, to slumber peacefully when there is plenty of work to be performed, which there is nothing doing, to leap up and rear around, to emit vast volumes of smoke, fire and lava, to replace them when there is a chance to take hold of some important piece of public business, to go to sleep again, when aroused, to lecture judges and easy the public.

NO SUFFRAGETTES NEEDED.

From the Baltimore American.

It has been proposed that the woman suffragists in this country adopt the aggressive tactics of their London sisters, who show no going to fall for disorderly conduct in defense of their theories. The proposition is likely to fall flat of itself, in the first place, the American women can get what ever they want without howling, and, in the second place, such a course would put the finishing torch to any further hope of getting the majority of women in this country to consider the question at all.

TIME MORE THAN MONEY.

From the New York Sun.

The job of building the Panama canal is not to be considered solely from the standpoint of dollars and cents. The position is reckoned to be rich in honor, so rich is it in this respect that long after the importance of the New York railway position is forgotten, the fame of the builder of the Panama canal will be alike green and enduring. It isn't the dollars' reputation that Mr. Shonts is after. He desires the dollars and to the best position in the country contemplate these will come to him in abundant measure. But this position, a year position in Panama, boggy and undesirable as the place may be, in contrast with the largest city on the western continent, has an honor attached to it, and the two combined will suffice for a man every way fitted for the great and responsible office of canal builder.

Facts About Congress

Age Average of Our Lawmakers is Increasing—Some Interesting Comparisons of the Congress Just Drawing to Its Close—Tenure in House Three Years and in Senate Eight—Graybeards and Youngsters.

From the Washington Herald.

In many respects the Fifty-ninth congress, whose life will expire March 4, is the most remarkable of any of its predecessors for a score or more of years. In the nearly two months in which it has been actually at work it has ground out more legislation that directly affects the everyday life of the people than can be asserted of any recent body of our national lawmakers. It has worked under full steam every minute of its sessions, overwhelmingly Republican in both branches, the Fifty-ninth has been responsive to the demands of a Republican president in every essential detail. Quietly threats have been made in both branches to ignore the executive recommendations for legislation regulating various phases of interstate commerce, but this sort of talk has been almost wholly confined to the cloakrooms and committee rooms. To a greater extent than any of those who preceded him during the life of this generation of Americans, President Roosevelt has exerted directly upon congress the tremendous power and prestige of office, and it is safe to assert, now that the life of the Fifty-ninth congress is fast drawing to its close, that the president is just as influential with it today as he was when it assembled in December, 1905.

Men of Long Known Standing in Both Houses.

The expiring congress affords a subject of interesting study. In the membership of both houses there are men who had attained distinction and power in national affairs before Theodore Roosevelt was known outside of small circles of friends, and some of whom were helping to make the history of the country long before he was old enough to vote. Conspicuous among the first class are Senator Allison, of Iowa; Senator Morgan, of Alabama, and Speaker Cannon, each of whom was in congress before the president had attained the voting age. Senators Hale and Frye of Maine, Senator Cullom, of Illinois, and Senator Aldrich of Rhode Island, were prominent figures in the senate when Mr. Roosevelt was holding his first office, that of a member of the New York legislature, while Grover Cleveland was governor of the state.

Statistics Show Members to Be Older Than Two Decades Ago.

A comparison of the Fifty-ninth congress with its predecessors of the last twenty decades develops some striking results. The most notable feature brought out by such comparison is that the average age of representatives and senators has increased. Statistics show that 20 years ago the average of members of the house was 45 years, and that of the senate 55. In these two decades, covering the terms of ten congresses, the average age of house members has jumped to 49 years, and that of senators to 62. In other congresses covering the period stated there were numerous members of the house who were not 30 years old. In this house there is no member that young and none less than 32, there being only four of these. In this class are Mrs. Wharton, of Chicago, who has been defeated by a Democrat, Fornes, of Texas, Mr. Leves, of South Carolina, Mr. Garrett, of Tennessee, and Mr. French, of Idaho. The oldest member in the house is Nehemiah Sperry, of Connecticut, who is now in his eighteenth year. Speaker Cannon will soon be 71, Gen. J. Warren Keifer, of Ohio, who was speaker of the house a generation ago, and represented congress only two years ago, is also 71. Gen. Charles H. Grosvenor, who has represented a Buckeye constituency continuously for 20 years, and who defeated for renomination last summer, is 71. Minnesota has in Loren Fletcher, of Minneapolis, a member who has passed the 30th score and ten much set by the product of old West Virginia has a venerable representative who is Henry G. Davis, leader of the Democratic candidate three years ago for president on the ticket with Alton B. Parker in 1904. This is Mr. Davis' first and last congress, he did not seek renomination.

Average Age of Members.

The average age of house members by states is as follows: Alabama, 53; Arkansas, 45; Colorado, 48; Connecticut, 59; Delaware (one member), 66; Florida, 46; Georgia, 50; Idaho (one member), 32; Illinois, 47; Indiana, 49; Iowa, 55; Kansas, 52; Kentucky, 46; Louisiana, 52; Maine, 62; Maryland, 52; Massachusetts, 50; Michigan, 54; Minnesota, 55; Mississippi, 48; Missouri, 47; Montana (one member), 49; Nebraska, 54; New Hampshire, 60; Nevada (one member), 41; New Jersey, 52; New York, 50; North Carolina, 45; North Dakota, 51; Ohio, 53; Oregon, 58; Pennsylvania, 54; Rhode Island, 62; South Carolina, 42; South Dakota, 49; Tennessee, 49; Texas, 46; Utah (one member), 53; Vermont, 60; Virginia, 51; Washington, 43; West Virginia, 55; Wisconsin, 51; Wyoming (one member), 45.

Thus it is shown that South Carolina is one of the original thirteen states, and one of the most conservative commonwealths in the country, leads in respect of low age average of state delegations in the house, as Idaho, Montana and Nevada are excluded from this comparison because they have only one member each. North Carolina, whose history and character parallel South Carolina, comes next in this regard. It is interesting to note that Maine and Rhode Island, states that are akin alike in citizenship and traditions lead in the matter of high average age of the state delegations and are tied. New Hampshire and Connecticut are close seconds in this category.

In fact, a further analysis of the vital statistics of congress shows that the New England group of states are represented in both branches by delegations whose average age is higher than that of any other grouping of states that might be made. The reason for this is not far to seek. New England conservatism accounts for it. New England keeps its representatives in congress until they grow old. About as many of them die in harness as out of it. Incidentally it may be remarked that New England usually gets the legislation it asks.

Youngest Member of Senate Only Forty Years Old.

Graybeards are the rule in the senate now more than ever before in the history of the country. The thirteen years difference in the average ages of the members of the two houses tell the story. There are, however, some rather snippish-looking youngsters in the upper chamber. Senator Burkett of Nebraska, heads the juvenile class. His age is 40, though he looks older than the next two youngest senators—Mr. Bailey of Texas and Mrs. Beveridge of Indiana, aged respectively, 44 and 45, whose birthdays, by the way, are the same date, October 6.

The youngest member of the senate close to the oldest, General Pettus of Alabama, who is more than twice as old as the Nebraskan, being 86. Senator Pettus' colleague, General John Tyler Morgan, is only three years his junior. These venerable statesmen have been warm personal friends and neighbors for more than 60 years. They have lived that long in the same town, Selma. The Democrats of Alabama last summer held a primary election and nominated their successors. Senators Morgan and Pettus advised this unprecedented course, realizing that at their advanced age they are liable to drop off at any moment. The men nominated in this primary, to succeed them are called "alternate senators." They are General George H. Bankhead, now a member of the house, and former Governor Joseph F. Johnston. Senator Morgan has just been re-elected. He has served 20 years. Only one other member of the senate has been there longer. He is William Boyd Allison of Iowa. The Iowan had been in the senate four years when General Morgan entered that body. Mr. Allison has had a longer continuous service in the senate than anybody else ever sat in that august tribunal.

Some Careers After Retirement From Senate.

In all the history of the republic only three or four other senators were elected for five consecutive terms. Mr. Allison is the only one ever elected the sixth time. Had there not been a wholly unexpected landslide in Missouri in 1904 that state's venerable statesman, Francis Marion Cockrell, who won his spurs in the Confederate army, and is now a member of the interstate commerce commission by appointment of President Roosevelt, would have matched Senator Allison's unique record. Senator Allison is 79, four years younger than the junior senator from Maryland, William Pinkney Whyte, who took the late Arthur Pue Gorman's seat last spring by appointment of Governor Warfield.

The venerable Marylander, a southern gentleman of the old school, was once before appointed to the senate by the governor of his state to fill a vacancy. This occurred in 1886, and Senator Whyte is now the only man alive who voted against the adoption of the Fifteenth Amendment of the constitution, which enfranchised the negroes. He came back to the senate for a full term in 1887, and probably had it not fortuitously ignored the demands of Arthur Pue Gorman, who was then beginning to assert his mastery of the Democratic party in Maryland, he would have been returned when his term expired by lapse on his retirement from the senate to accept the mayor of Baltimore, and after that was successively attorney general of Maryland and city solicitor of Baltimore. He is one of the very few men in the ranks of his party. He was tutored in his earlier years by a man who had been Napoleon Bonaparte's private secretary.

Averages Ages and Tenures in Congress.

Analyzing still further the trend of any change in congress develops some interesting comparisons. House members are elected for two years and senators for six. The membership of the house is now 386. That of the senate is 90. Adding the total number of years every member of the house has served and dividing that result by 386, the quotient is three years. The same simple mathematical process applied to the senate shows the average service of senators to be eight years.

If these averages of the present congress are true, it will hold good for future congresses, an actuary could compile a table of tenure-expectancy or a guide to the ambition of every American citizen desirous of serving his country as a national lawmaker. Such a table would show these figures:

Average age of senators.....years.
Average age of house members.....years.
Average tenure in the senate.....years.
Average tenure in the house.....years.

The foregoing figures speak in no equivocal terms of the uncertainty and instability of public life in the United States. Men who are ambitious to come to congress can apply them perhaps with profit.

A million voices hail your name
Since first thou saw the light,
And still a million nations thy name
And celebrate thy might.

Of truth thou art, truly wise thou art,
Alike in word and deed,
Who with one stroke of thy pen
Four million bondmen freed.

Nay more than that the million free,
From slavery's curse and sight,
Till o'er one land from end to end
Did hills of freedom shine.

The humblest slave dared lift his head,
For life and liberty,
Were now the right of the oppressed
By thy benign decree.

The Union held by thee so dear,
Is a reality,
And stands one grand united whole,
A monument of thee.

But hadst thou faltered in thy task,
How changed might history read,
And still might clank the chains of slaves
The victims of men's greed!

Thank God for thy great life of love
And service for thy state,
Thy name throughout the nation's bounds
With pride we celebrate.

Great men shall come and great men go,
In the world's march and yet
Thy name of noble patriot
We never shall forget.

KATHERINE D. TILLMAN

TIRES OF BEING AN IDLER.

Man Who Inherits Unexpected Fortune Glad to Go to Work.

From the New York Sun.

"After all," said a man, who some time ago had a fortune left to him, "there is nothing like work.

"I used to think that if I had money enough to live on comfortably, so that I didn't have to work, I should be happy. My work was one incessant grind, day after day the same unendingly round of the same things over and over again, and I used to get so tired of it all that sometimes it seemed as though I should fly.

"But I had to keep at it to live, so I did keep at it till a distant relative of mine that I had never known was worth anything died and left me a fortune.

"There never was anything that ever happened to me that ever gave me half so much pleasure as that. The first thing I did was to shake the work which I got rid of as quickly as I decently could and then I set about pleasuring myself.

"The one thing of all that I wanted most was to travel. I craved a change and when that money came I got it. I set out on my dreamed of travels and found a keen delight in them all—for a time.

"It was the same to me whether the sun shone or it rained, for wherever I was or wherever I was going I was free to enjoy it as the mood took me at time, but then I began to find myself in a way apart, and not so much privileged to enjoy these things as I had been at first.

"For I was an idler, pure and simple, while all those to whom I was indebted for the possibility of the pleasures of travel, the railroad men and the steamship men, were all workers, as were also the hotel men and the theater people and everybody to whom I was indebted for pleasures in sojourn. All workers. So likewise were all, or nearly all, the travelers I met, workers in one field or another, all, and finding now in traveling for rest and pleasure and recreation delight in every breath they drew because they were workers.

"And they were drawn, if not together, at least toward one another of their kind, while I, an idler only, had nothing in common with the world. Even in far distant ports where I lounged over the rail I found myself more and more separated from the laborer on the wharf, who, bound though he might be to his work, yet had an object in view which he accomplished by labor, which I was may apart. In fact, the more I idled the more clearly I came to realize that the law of the universe is labor, that in nature there is nothing idle, and the more I traveled the more clearly it came to me how few and idlers there are among men.

"When, finally, at the end of three years of idling I had come back again to the city I had this and home of mine, my work grooved smoothly into over and now I am glad to be that I found it first in this feeling as I quite departed.

"The city was alive with activity, with men all at work, all doing something, intent on accomplishing something. I was out of it, an idler, and a stranger. Activity was looked at me as a thing half-light, some of them with curiosity. That I should be doing nothing when there was so much work wondered.

"Friends that I had known grew cold to me and stalled and the cut passed me. They had their work to do and to fit interests and their sympathies were with other people. I stood alone, a castaway, until by a long process there arose within me a desire to work.

"I've been at it ever since and I am still grateful to be back in the fold of men."

AMERICAN BANKING POWER.

The banking power of the United States, capital, surplus and circulation, is stated in the Comptroller Ridgely's last report at $[illegible]. All foreign countries combined have a banking power of only $22,[illegible], or only $[illegible] more than that of the United States alone. In sixteen years the United States has increased its banking power by 90 per cent, while the rest of the world has increased its banking power by 50 per cent, and in Europe the increase is only [illegible] per cent. In fourteen years the United States has increased its capital, surplus and circulation 100 per cent, while the rest of the world has increased theirs only 50 per cent.

JAMES F. BOYNTON IS MARRIED

Weds Miss Lottie J. DuMire Group Is President of Central Electric Company.

Only a half dozen of their most intimate friends were aware of the marriage of James F. Boynton and Miss Lottie J. DuMire, in the parsonage of the Catholic church at 5:45 Sunday night. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Father Hagus. Mr. and Mrs. Boynton afterward went to their home, 16 East Boulder street.

Mr. Boynton has lived in this city for 18 years, and is well known in business circles. He is president of the Central Electric company, in which his brother, Frank E. Boynton, is also interested. He is also a brother of W. S. Boynton, recently appointed surveyor of customs at Denver.

Miss DuMire has been a resident of Colorado Springs for about a year, coming here with her sister, Miss DuMire from West Virginia.

BOYNTON WILL ACCEPT PLACE

Will Be Surveyor of Customs at Denver but Will Make This City His Home.

W. S. Boynton, of this city, will accept the position of surveyor of customs at Denver, to which position he was recently appointed by President Roosevelt.

Mr. Boynton said last night that his duties will require him to be in Denver most of the time, but that he will continue to make his home in Colorado Springs.

REV. ARTHUR E. WILLETS DEAD

Former Well-Known Colorado Springs Minister Dies at Los Angeles, California.

The death of the Rev. Arthur E. Willets, formerly of this city, occurred at Los Angeles, California, Sunday night. Mr. Willets was a son-in-law of Warren E. Woods, head of the Woods Investment company of this city, and well known here. He was a minister of the Baptist church for several years, and held charges at Florence and Victor, in this state, but gave up the work on account of ill health, and went to Los Angeles to look after the interests of the Woods company there, after being identified with their interests here for several years.

Mr. Willets was always much interested in the work of the Woods Memorial chapel, on North Tejon street, while in this city, and it is probable that special memorial services will be held there next Sunday. Mr. Willets married Miss Hattie Woods in this city in 1898.

The body will be placed in a vault at Los Angeles, pending a decision as to the final place of burial.

"MINISTER AND REFORM"—The main feature of the regular meeting of the Ministerial association yesterday was a paper read by Presiding Elder A. R. Chapman on "The Minister and Reform." A committee report on the proposed change in the municipal dinner hour was read, and the meeting considered the proposition to install pool tables in the Y. M. C. A. rooms.

Rheumatic Folks!

Are You Sure Your Kidneys Are Well?

Many rheumatic attacks are due to uric acid in the blood. But the duty of the kidneys is to remove all uric acid from the blood. Its presence therefore shows the kidneys are inactive. "Don't talk with uric acid solvents." You might go on still dreaming with those but until you cure the kidneys you will never get well. Doan's Kidney Pills not only remove uric acid, but cure the kidneys and then all danger from uric acid is ended. Here is Colorado Springs testimony to prove it.

Mrs. J. H. Boynton, 516 Colorado avenue, Colorado Springs, Colo., says: "Mr. Boynton has been a great sufferer from kidney trouble and rheumatism. Rheumatic pains would center in his limbs and loins. At times the muscles would be badly swollen and very weak. He procured Doan's Kidney Pills at the D. H. Fischer Drug Co. and the pain gradually left him. The swelling was reduced and he was thoroughly relieved of the trouble. Ever since he has held a high estimation of Doan's Kidney Pills."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

S. W. GRIFFIN ACCEPTS CALL

Will Succeed G. H. Simonson as Pastor of Second Presbyterian Church. Assumes Duties April 1.

The Rev. S. W. Griffin of Falls City, Neb., has accepted a call to the pastorate of the Second Presbyterian church, Colorado Springs, to succeed the Rev. G. H. Simonson, who recently resigned to become pastor of the Mesa Presbyterian church, Pueblo. Mr. Griffin will assume his duties April 1. For the last few weeks he has been preaching in the different Presbyterian churches in this city.

Mr. Griffin has been pastor of the Presbyterian church at Falls City for the last three years. For the fifteen years immediately preceding his going to Falls City, he was pastor of a church in Kansas City, Mo. Mr. Griffin is a widower. His daughter will come to this city with him. He has two sons, one of whom is in business in Denver, the other being connected with the Colorado Fuel and Iron company at Carthage, N. M.

TODAY IS A LEGAL HOLIDAY

Banks, City and County Offices and Many Places of Business to Observe Lincoln's Birthday.

In observance of Lincoln's birthday, the banks, many of the business houses, the real estate offices and the city and county offices will be closed all day today. There will be but one mail delivery. The day is not only a legal holiday, but has been declared a Colorado state holiday.

Legal processes, except the serving of papers and other necessary acts, are invalidated on this day, just as on Sunday.

Golf tournaments will be held today on the links of the Town and Gown Golf club and the Cheyenne Mountain Country club.

PURCHASING FOLEY'S HONEY AND TAR.

Foley & Co., Chicago, originated Honey and Tar as a throat and lung remedy, and on account of the great merit and popularity of Foley's Honey and Tar many imitations are offered for the genuine. W. M. BURNHAM ARRESTED.

Charged With Assault to Kill—Details Unknown.

W. M. Burnham, aged 74 years, said to be mentally unbalanced, was arrested by Marshal Cree in Manitou last night, charged with assault to kill. Burnham was lodged in the county jail. It was impossible to secure details of his alleged crime last night.

NEWS OF THE LOCAL COURTS

P. C. Lockstuder, who was arrested Sunday on a charge of criminal assault, was yesterday morning made a defendant in two similar charges. He was arraigned in Justice Rigby's court and placed under bond in the sum of $500 in each case, to appear for trial Saturday morning. The parents of three girls, 14 and 15 years old, are prosecuting the cases.

Lulu Hill, colored, yesterday filed an appeal in the district court, of the judgment recently brought by her in the county court against George and Hettie Cowan. The plaintiff, who sued for $150 damages as a result of her imprisonment for the theft of a diamond belonging to Cowan, lost the case in the county court.

The appeal case of Lilla Shelk vs. Thomas Kern, a money demand suit, was filed in the county court yesterday.

Judge Shearer yesterday signed an order releasing from the county jail Nat Rodgers, who late completed a ten-day sentence for a misdemeanor.

The case of J. T. Estill vs. John Doe was yesterday set in the district court for March 12.

In the district court yesterday, judgment was entered by default in the suit of P. Panello vs. Lombard.

James Riehs was yesterday fined $5 and costs for drunkenness by Magistrate A. P. Toombs.

ARBITRATORS ADJOURN

QUESTION OF ESTOPPEL IS THE STICKLER.

Address Joint Letter to Attorneys Asking for Briefs on This Point. Decision Delayed.

The board of arbitrators, with which rests the decision in the city-Hydro controversy, has practically come to a unanimous agreement regarding the merits of the case, according to information there reaches, with the question of estoppel, as raised by the Hydro attorney, to be taken up. The board met here yesterday, Professor L. G. Carpenter returning to Fort Collins, and Henry Floy and E. L. Elliott to New York, where their respective duties resulted their immediate attention.

The three members of the board yesterday addressed a joint letter to the two opposing attorneys in the case, giving four reasons for their adjournment. Foremost in importance is one to the effect that, in view of the importance of the questions involved, it is desirable that the board reach a unanimous conclusion. Another important cause for adjournment is that the attorneys in the case are requested to submit briefs on the question of the city's being estopped in regard to any claim by reason of its use of the type of arc lights now installed on the streets.

Work for Attorneys.

Attorney W. C. Robinson, for the city, has five days in which to prepare a brief of his arguments as to why the city is not estopped. He will show, it is understood, that the city can not be legally estopped from making any claim, for the reason that the Hydro company has not been put to any expense as a result of the city's stand, or attitude, regarding the system of arc lights now in use. Other facts will be submitted in support of his brief.

A copy of this brief will be sent to each of the three arbitrators, as well as the Attorney Karl C. Schuyler of the Hydro company. Attorney Schuyler will then have five days in which to submit his brief. Copies of this, likewise, will be mailed to the three arbitrators and to the city attorney, who will then have five days in which to submit his answering brief. The arbitrators will thus not receive all the briefs for fifteen days from today, should each attorney consume the full period of time allowed.

A decision is not expected before three weeks from the present time, although to guess can be made as to the date of the verdict. It is not improbable that Messrs. Floy and Elliott, who live in New York, will confer together and correspond with Professor Carpenter at Fort Collins, regarding the matter, so the arbitrators may not meet as a board before rendering a decision.

City Attorney Robinson last night said, with respect to the case:

"I have full confidence in the intelligence and integrity of the three arbitrators. The city, in my opinion, has a just case. I hope and believe that it will receive a substantial award."

The Letter.

Following is the letter written by the arbitrators to the opposing counsel:

Colorado Springs, Colo., Feb. 11, 1907.

Judge W. C. Robinson, Attorney for City of Colorado Springs.

Hon. K. C. Schuyler, Attorney for The Pike's Peak Hydro Electric Co., Denver.

Gentlemen—Having considered for the past two days the various matters laid before the board of arbitration, we find it necessary to adjourn for the following reasons:

First—We desire opportunity to receive and examine the stenographer's record of the proceedings which will not be complete for several days.

Second—The legal questions involved require more investigation and consideration than we have opportunity for doing here. In this connection, we have asked the attorneys for the two parties in interest to submit briefs on the question of the city's being estopped in regard to any claim by reason of the use of the type of arc lamps at present installed on the streets of Colorado Springs.

Third—The hearing has taken a much longer time than contemplated by the city or the Hydro-Electric company, and the arbitrators therefore, unexpectedly find themselves embarrassed with other duties, which become pressing because of the unexpected continuation of this hearing.

Fourth—In view of the importance of the questions involved, and the far-reaching effect, it is desirable that the board reach a unanimous conclusion. The questions have developed into so many that it is evident that a unanimous decision can not be reached until further opportunity to carefully study the testimony, and an examination of the legal questions involved.

Yours respectfully,
L. G. CARPENTER,
HENRY FLOY,
E. L. ELLIOTT.

ASHWORTH A CANDIDATE.

City Engineer Will Ask Republicans for Renomination.

R. H. Ashworth has announced his intention to become a candidate before the Republican convention for the nomination to succeed himself as city engineer.

Mr. Ashworth left last night on a business trip to Galveston, Tex., where he will be for a week or 10 days.

WILL GO TO JURY TODAY.

Neff's Fate Likely to Be Decided Before Night.

The introduction of evidence by both the prosecution and defense was concluded in Pueblo yesterday, where J. F. Neff, formerly homade agent in this city, is on trial in the district court, on a charge of criminally assaulting Margaret Cole, a 17-year-old girl. Arguments on both sides will be heard this morning, and the case is expected to go to the jury at noon.

Incriminating evidence was submitted by Margaret Cole and by a clerk in the Grand hotel, the latter swearing that Neff registered the name "R. R. Smith and wife" on the hotel register. Neff said that he took the girl to the hotel in order that she might arrange her toilet and prepare herself for her entrance to the house of refuge to which he was taking her. He strenuously denied registering and said that he was in the girl's room for only 10 minutes, during which time the door was open.

FREE SWIMS FOR BOYS

SCHOOL LADS OF CITY GUESTS OF THE Y. M. C. A.

Business Men Are Taking Great Interest in Friday's Big Membership Campaign.

It isn't every day that the boys of Colorado Springs are given an opportunity to take a free swim and splash around in the water to their heart's content, and kick minus navigation for four of sunshiny, shivery days, from the cold, so the announcement of a free swim for free swim of the Y. M. C. A. this week has brought much joy to the small boy. The swim will be given under the auspices of the boys' department. In this manner the department hopes to interest the boys of the city in its work and advantages, that it may secure at least one of the 500 new members for which a campaign is to be conducted Friday. The membership drive of the boys' department has been placed at 100, and many members are needed to secure this number.

The schedule of swims follows: Tuesday, February 12, 4:30 p. m., Garfield, Columbia and Bristol schools; Wednesday, February 13, 4:30 p. m., Steele, Washington and Eighth Street schools; 7:30 p. m., employed boys.

Already the Y. M. C. A. workers who hope to make Friday's campaign a tremendous success, are getting busy and canvassing the city. The boys' department will have 100 workers, while the other branches of the association will have 200 workers. From early morning Friday until late that night they will scour the city in search of new members for the Y. M. C. A. The workers are divided up into teams among which great rivalry exists. Everyone is confident of success.

In this campaign, which will be one of the greatest undertakings ever attempted by the local association, 300 business men of the city have promised to lend every possible assistance. They have agreed to give a line in their advertisements in the daily papers to the campaign for 500 new members.

Following is a list of the captains who will have charge of the workers Friday:

M. P. Yates, Dr. G. E. Conway, Dr. L. H. McKinnie, Henry Schmidt, W. C. Thomas, F. F. Schreiber, F. A. Lissell, Herbert Sisson, Elmer Sutton, O. C. Buck, H. W. Anderson, E. M. Aiken, C. B. Lauterman, W. A. Lloyd, James Anthony, F. M. Marsh, C. C. Morris, J. E. Collie, Phil Nono and Rudolph Heyse.

MAY DELAY THE MAILS

LOCAL BODIES PROTEST AGAINST REDUCTIONS.

Railroads Will Be Unable to Give as Good Mail Service if Congress Curtails Money.

In strong protest against the passage of the bill pending in congress for a reduction in the federal railway mail service appropriation, which, if passed, it is claimed, will result in a delay of from 12 to 24 hours in the delivery of eastern mail to this city, the local Chamber of Commerce has sent resolutions to Colorado's representatives in congress.

The representatives of El Paso county in the state legislature have also been memorialized to urge Colorado United States senators and congressmen to vote against the measure. The Merchants association of this city has taken similar action, and the Real Estate exchange and Clearing House association are expected to follow suit.

The bill now before the house of representatives provides for a reduction of many millions of dollars in the appropriation for railway mail service. The reduction, if carried out, will result in poorer railway service to and from this city, so that eastern mail will be delayed from 12 to 24 hours, according to well-founded estimates. It is to prevent this state of affairs that the business organizations of Colorado Springs are urging action against the bill, on the part of Colorado's members in congress.

Many other cities and states, it is understood, are taking similar action.

—Mrs. M. M. Grimes, who has been ill in Denver for several weeks, is convalescent and will be able to return to Colorado Springs and attend to business matters in the near future.

MANY MOTIONS ARE HEARD

District Judges Morris and Shearer Have Busy Day—Much Important Business.

The hearing of motions in civil cases occupied the attention of Judges Morris and Shearer in the district court all day yesterday.

In the case of Campbell vs. Hitchcock et al., the court overruled the defendant's demurrer to the plaintiff's supplemental complaint, and allowed the defendant ten days in which to file an answer to the supplemental complaint. This is the suit involving the Manitou Bathing company controversy.

In the cases of the Colorado Springs company vs. Otto Fehringer et al. and W. L. Zobrist et al., Judge Morris sustained the defendants' demurrers to plaintiff's complaints as to the allegations regarding the corporate existences of the respective defendant companies, overruling the demurrers on all other points. The plaintiff in each case was given leave to file an amended complaint, by interlineation at once, the defendants being given ten days in which to answer the amended complaints. The orders in the two cases were identical except for the change in the names of the respective defendants. In both cases the defendants excepted.

In the case of A. E. Proctor vs. Harvey Gillingham, Judge Shearer denied the motion of the defendant for a new trial. The defendant excepted and prayed an appeal to the supreme court. He was given thirty days in which to file an appeal bond of $200, and sixty days in which to file a bill of exceptions. This is the case wherein Constable Gillingham of Justice Dunnington's court was sued by Mrs. A. E. Proctor for the value of goods seized by Gillingham on a court order in a barber shop belonging to her, and secured judgment approximating $600.

In the same court, Chief of Police Alex Adams was ordered to turn over to Attorney M. W. Purcell the sum of $9.10 and all other property taken by the police from J. C. Kerns, a former city prisoner. Chief Adams was instructed to retain $50 pending the further order of the court. Kerns is an alleged bunco man who was captured by the police department. A sum of money found on him was placed in safekeeping by Chief Adams according to custom, and the attorney demanded a part thereof for legal services rendered Kerns.

In the case of the John Denman Three company vs. the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific railroad, the court sustained the demurrer of the defendant to the plaintiff's complaint, as to the second and third grounds, overruling it on all other points. The plaintiff was given twenty days to file an amended complaint and the defendant fifteen days in which to plead after the filing thereof. Both parties excepted.

GRADE IS IMPROVING

BATTLE MOUNTAIN AJAX IS GROWING BETTER.

Gross Monthly Production from All Lessees Amounts to $16,000. Prospects Quite Flattering.

Special to The Gazette.

CRIPPLE CREEK, Feb. 11.—The Battle Mountain Ajax, one of the oldest producing mines in the Cripple Creek district, is now getting out on company account and with its six sets of lessees, about 300 tons of ore a month. Recently the grade of the ore has been improving so much that the average value is now about two ounces in gold to the ton, making a gross monthly production of $16,000.

The six sets of lessees are continuing their operations from the surface down to the 400-foot level, while the company is operating on the fourth and fifth levels, where the heavier tonnage is being obtained. The company is working on two ore bodies and keeps twelve machine drills constantly employed on ore and development work. A long crosscut is now being driven into virgin territory to cut a shoot which is believed to traverse the property on the north and east end of the Ajax property. The Ajax mine is in better physical condition at the present time that it has been for several years, and the prospects are quite flattering for even a better tonnage in the near future than is being made at the present time.

MANY IMPROVEMENTS

SCHOOL SECTION COMPANY IS SPENDING $8,000.

One Car of Ore a Day is Now Being Shipped—Screenings Run Better Than Three Ounces.

Special to The Gazette.

CRIPPLE CREEK, Feb. 11.—The School Section Leasing company, operating on block No. 18 of the Cameron school section, has just expended $8,000 in surface improvements, and, beginning about March 1, will be able to get out from ten to twelve cars of ore a week.

A new and large ore house has been completed, a tramway 100 feet long has been built, two boilers with a capacity of 240-horsepower, an eight-drill compressor and a skip are among the many improvements that are being made on this well-known lease, which is the only one which has ever turned in any royalties to the state school fund.

This company is now shipping one about one car of ore a day. The screenings have been running better than three ounces in gold to the ton, while the coarse rock has been giving values of from $20 to $25. The ore is practically all being mined from the 300-foot level, where a good-sized ore shoot has been uncovered. It was only a short time ago that the company installed a pump, which is capable of handling 4,200 gallons per minute. The shaft has been sunk to an approximate depth of 800 feet, and when all the present improvements have been made the mine will be unwatered and work at depth will be done.

$5,000 BRICK FROM CLEANUP

Ironclad Cyanide Company Is Operating "Little" Homestake.

Special to The Gazette.

CRIPPLE CREEK, Feb. 11.—The Ironclad Cyanide company, operating the "Little" Homestake mill, on Ironclad hill, has just made a cleanup from a fifteen days' run of 269 ounces, or a brick valued at more than $5,000. This company, besides handling a considerable amount of ore on its own account, is also treating custom ore, but the custom ore handled now is much less than it was a few months ago.

Beginning in another month it is expected that the Colorado parties who secured a lease on the Homestake mill, the one which has a daily capacity of 1,000 tons, will be operating. At first, only a limited amount of ore will be treated, but as soon as the mill is in good running order the capacity will be increased.

SOON TO INCREASE CAPACITY

Trilby Company is Installing New Machinery.

Special to The Gazette.

CRIPPLE CREEK, Feb. 11.—The Trilby Mines company has its shaft house completed and has started the foundations for the machinery. This will require about ten days. The ore house is going up and other improvements are being pushed forward as rapidly as possible. The Trilby company is shipping one car of ore every week, but it will be about March 1 before active operations are begun. The Trilby company then will probably be able to ship two cars of ore a day. The ore will be mined from the 500 to the 850-foot point. The company expects, after everything is in good working order, to sublease the upper levels.

NEW CAPITAL IS INTERESTED

Central City District Showing Renewed Activity—Much High Grade Ore Coming Out.

CENTRAL CITY, Colo., Feb. 11.—Rowe, Parks, Cody & Co. of this city have taken a lease on the East Gunnell, on what is known as the "485" shaft, and, after cleaning it out and retimbering, have gone to drifting in a depth of a little over 100 feet. They have struck pay ore, commenced shipping today to the stamp mill, and will soon have a shipment of high-grade ore ready for the sampling works. The property has been idle for a decade, and the low-grade ore will pay good returns today, when they would not pay to handle in the earlier days.

A new building is being erected on the Mecker shaft of the Cashier G. M. & R. company, in the lower Russell district, and a comparatively new plant of steam machinery is being installed. The shaft is down 100 feet and will be sunk to connect with some of the workings from the Pittsburg mine, also owned by the Cashier company, in which western New York and Pennsylvania capital is interested. A good force is at work at the Pittsburg, where some first-class smelting ores are being hoisted, ranging from $40 to over $200 per ton in gold and silver and carrying a high proportion of copper values. The entire production is being sent to the sampling works and smelters, and the property is paying a very nice profit.

Edwards and Co., leasing in the 555-foot level of the East Notoway mine, a neighbor of the Mecker and Pittsburg properties, have shipped some smelting ores this week from which returns of better than ten ounces gold per ton are expected, their last shipment going over sixteen ounces gold per ton besides silver and copper. This property is being worked entirely on the leasing system, and the grade of the smelting ores is better than the average of the county. Property is owned by the Town Topics Gold Mining company.

Eastern people have taken hold of the Gold Dollar property, in Eureka gulch, having made a payment on the same, and the management is in the hands of Alfred Skeels of this city. The property, considering developments, has made a very favorable showing, and the real system of development is to be carried on, which will soon furnish employment to a good sized force of men.

Black Hawk people have become interested in a group of claims near Hughesville, west of Black Hawk, where some high-grade silver ores have been recently discovered. A couple of minor deals have already been transacted, and more active developments will follow from this time on. Ores running up to 500 ounces silver per ton have been opened up and there promises to be considerable territory prospected in that section between now and spring. High-grade silver ores were discovered in the earlier days, but since the decline in silver no work has been carried on in that section.

Foley's Honey and Tar cures the most obstinate coughs and expels the cold from the system as it is mildly laxative. It is unsurpassed. The genuine is in the yellow package. All dealers.

WHEAT CLOSES WEAK

LIBERAL SELLING LATE IN DAY IS CAUSE.

Corn Sells Free, and Market Closes Weak--Oats Steady Early, but Are Weak Later.

CHICAGO, Feb. 11.--The report contradicting statements made last week regarding the purchase of large quantities of American wheat by the Russian government for famine relief purposes, caused liberal selling late in the day, and resulted in a weak close to the market. The denial came in a cablegram from St. Petersburg to a Minneapolis house, in response to an inquiry concerning famine conditions in that country. At the opening, the market was strong on lively buying by commission houses, small shipments from Russia last week and higher prices at Liverpool. About the end of the first hour, the market became somewhat easier on selling by bulls. As trading progressed, the selling became more liberal and prices weakened. May closed at 80 1-4 a net advance of 3-8c.

A large increase in local receipts and a favorable map caused free selling of corn—by commission houses—and brought about a weak undertone in the market. The majority of futures with prices close to the lowest. May was 1-4c net lower at 46 3-8.

Oats were steady early in the day on buying by cash houses, but toward noon the market weakened in sympathy with wheat and corn and closed weak. May closed 1-4 lower at 43 3-4.

Provisions were weak because of large receipts of live hogs. At the close May pork was off 2½c, lard 7 1-2 and ribs 12 1-2 lower.

Furnished by Otis & Hough, bankers and brokers.

STOCK MARKET DULL

BUYING ORDERS COME AT IRREGULAR INTERVALS.

Receipt of News From Washington Indicating Relief From Treasury Department Causes Stir.

NEW YORK, Feb. 11.—The notable fact in the action of the stock market was the readiness with which prices advanced on a volume of buying, which was moderate. The buying orders came into the market at irregular intervals and there were long halts in the rising tendency and in the execution of buying orders. The hardness of the market in the dull intervals was remarkable and there was scarcely any selling throughout the substance of the trading. During the first hour there was some selling which seemed to be based on the prospect of higher money rates offered by the complexion of the bank statement on Saturday. The ample demand to absorb this selling put an end to it and the professional element showed no aggressive opposition to the upward tendency after that.

The receipt of the news from Washington that the treasury department would buy $25,000,000 of the newly matured four per cents of 1907 at 101½ was the signal for the most animated buying of the session.

The heavy loss of cash reported in Saturday's bank statement is attributed largely to the withdrawal of the first half of these deposits and the small margin of the bank surplus makes the threatened withdrawals of $6,000,000 more formidable. The treasury's offer is half per cent higher than was made in December for $10,000,000. At that time only about $3,000,000 of the bonds was turned in. The prices offered is practically all there is in the market. The response to the offer is not expected from holders of the bonds who have them on deposit to secure circulation. From investment holders it is not expected that large offerings will be made. More stress was laid on the expectation that the decision of the treasury would be modified regarding the withdrawal of deposits on Friday.

There were rumors in constant circulation in the market also of a feeling of greater confidence on the part of the capitalists over the attitude of the administration towards corporations. There was some vagueness in the current surmises on the subject, varying from supposed modification of the plans of the government to the belief that the feeling of increased confidence simply represents modified views of capitalists as to the probable effects of the government program.

New York secured none of the gold arrivals in London, although an advance in the price indicated some degree of competition for the supply. The impression is conveyed in banking circles that this result was due to a compliance on the part of the New York bankers with the restrictive conditions in the London market, rather than to inability to have secured the gold. The dullness of the market was partly accounted for by the interruption of operations by tomorrow's holiday. The strength of the coppers was the effective sustaining influence in the latter market. Rumors of an early increase in the Amalgamated dividend were used with effect.

Bonds were heavy. Total sales, par value, $1,420,000.

United States of Indianapolis advanced 2-8, the coupons, the 3s and the old 4s 1-4, and the new 4s coupon ½ per cent on the call.
